Former La Cañada HS Grad, Ara Aslanian, joins the Community Center of La Cañada Flintridge Board of Directors

Los Angeles, CA – June 8, 2009 = Ara Aslanian, La Cañada High School graduate, class of '92, gives back by joining the Board of Directors of the Community Center of La Cañada Flintridge. Mr. Aslanian is not the only LCHS graduate to return to play an active role in the community. The Community Center's Executive Director, Megan Nordvedt, is also an alumni, and former LCHS principal, Michael Leininger, is another recent addition to the Board.

In 1998 Mr. Aslanian founded Inverselogic. Inverselogic started as a specialized network and internet infrastructure development company, and has since evolved as a leading provider of networking, connectivity, hardware integration, and e-business application development services provider to medium and small size businesses, as well as state and local government. They are actively involved in working with the local community organizations to improve their networking and digital marketing efforts.

"I have a lot of wonderful memories growing up in La Cañada. I wanted to show my appreciation by getting more involved and supporting the educational and social programs available within the community" said Mr. Aslanian. "The Community Center has a far reach and hundreds of children and adults of all ages benefit from the programs and the sense of belonging the center provides."

"We are so excited to have him join our family here at the Community Center. He and I went to high school together and graduated the same year, so it's even more fun to be working with one of my peers!" said Megan Nordvedt, Executive Director of the Community Center of LCF. "Already, Ara has shown some real excitement about working with us and becoming involved in many new projects at the Center. We're looking forward to a very productive year!"
